CAMOUFLAGE SAYS LA SALLE AS OTTAWA BEATS 'EM 21 TO 20

ELEVEN ENEMY TANKS DISGUISED AS A BOY SCOUT, PROVED TOO GREAT A SHOCK FOR COACH FELLOWS' MEN TO STAND UP UNDER CAMOUFLAGE THAT'S ALL.

Ottawa High School did NOT hand out its yesterday's combat with La Salle on the silver platters.

No indeed, me boy, it did not. The serving was done by eleven youngsters under head waiter Fellows. So completely outclassed was the opposition in the early stages of the battle Coach Biggs brought home a bunch of conquering heroes. Instead of hanging-dogged crowd of disappointed grid-iron performers. The exhibition was a clear demonstration that the sewing class for scrappers is still an unnecessary.

When smoke of the battle, which was fought yesterday afternoon on La Salle's own no man's land, was cleared away, the count stood thusly: Ottawa 21; La Salle 20.

And there hangs a tale. In the first half of the clash Woodward, Ottawa's speedy fullback, went thru La Salle lines like a Canadian going "over the top" for a bunch of Boches. He did it deftly and with dispatch. By the time the curtain was rung down on the two initial quarters Ottawa had its foe so deep in the trenches there was no possibility of their getting out. This is said advisedly as the alibi stuff may throw a different color upon the result "what might have been."

At the end of the first period Coach Fellows took his leaders in the first line of defense back to the second trenches where he told them some things that were not at all pleasing for the lads to hear. Anyway they came back after that and gave Ottawa a fairly good chase for its money. In the closing periods they amassed two more touchdowns thru the good and kindly intervention of fortune and fate. But just about the time they were pulling all their wires for that proverbial, La Salle luck to continue its shine, the time keepers announced the skirmish was over and the allied forces of the Red and white had settled the fray without demanding indemnities other than one more chance to do it again. From the viewpoint of the Free Trader-Journal's expert the conflict of yesterday is the first in recent years that O. H. S. entered a scrimmage with La Salle honors even on the Jinx business. Heretofore all the breaks have been La Salleward, but for once Ottawa dipped into the pot and pulled out a few plums of its own. This combined with superiority of attack and defense wrote final on La Salle's aspirations which had been built upon the false hope that the "O. H. S. would be easy."

Was it not admitted with an Ottawa bard that there "was nothing to it but La Salle"? Then when tricks were dealt and Biggs held aces back to back and draws still ahead, the shock was too horrible for human contemplation to fully grasp.

Satisfied that the Ottawa dopesters camouflaged the red and white Fellows' youngsters are gnashing teeth for another whirl at their natural enemy confidently announcing that they will take actual operations on the battle line instead of any more of that Hugh Fullerton's stuff. To smash up against eleven enemy tanks disguised as a boy scout is some jolt, Shrap says.

Ottawa kicked off to La Salle-Peru in the curtain raiser and the ball was fumbled, being recaptured by Ottawa. The La Salle team held Ottawa on the 2-yard line in stubborn defense, but soon Woodward catapulted through the line for a touchdown and the free goal was kicked. Score, Ottawa 7, La Salle-Peru 0.

Ottawa again kicked to La Salle-Peru, following which Fritz, Cohen and Toellen, working like a machine, worked the ball 35 yards down the field on forward passes and end runs. Being temporarily held, Fritz punted, but the Ottawa back fumbled the catch. Quick as a cat, Kogoski of the La Salle-Peru team snatched up the ball and scooted over the Ottawa line for a touchdown. Dierkes then kicked a goal, making the count 7 all.

Woodward and the Ottawa right half again rushed the ball down the field in the second quarter and Woodward went over for his second touchdown and kicked goal. Score—Ottawa 14, La Salle-Peru 7. Byrne was injured and had to leave the La Salle-Peru lineup this quarter; his place was taken by Ewend of Peru.

The greater part of the time the ball was in La Salle's territory, but Woodward and Hitter, Ottawa's two plunging backs ripped holes in the

SHRAP-NEL

Well, Shrap, didja enjoy that program over to the high school last nite. I hope ya buy a Liberty Bond tonite. Shrap, 'cause I can't—the ghost don't walk. My ghost hardly ever does. Shrap; he's a confirmed invalid and never gets very far around our well-known loop.

Shrap, they tells me that ya was seen in all your glory down to the La Salle game yesterday and I must say I am surprised the way you butted in on them two old ladies that was talking about the war when ya was coming home on the car. Ya know the old ladies said—

"I was reading in the paper about those wonderful British tanks they have in France."

And then you sez "Yes ma'am—those British tanks certainly are great. I used to know one."

"You—why where did you ever see Tank?"

"In Ottawa."

"What—those great Tanks that go rolling right over the trenches?" "Yessum" says you. "Many's the night I've rolled around town with one of them British tanks. His name was Scotty Hastings."

Oh, Shrap, you're crude. I'll never teach ya anything.

Shrap, I didn't tell ya that I received quite a bit of mail since I been in the colym business. I got letters from all the big men in the country except August Helfrich.

I got one from Senator La Follette like this—

Her Shrap:

Respected Sir:

I have a very painful duty before me next Tuesday. I must make a speech to the Senate explaining myself. That's hard, Shrap, and as life for me has for some time been just one dinged explanation after another, I would like your assistance. Write me a speech—a good one. You're a grand liar. Say that I love my country and that the Kaiser is a harmless boob that wouldn't hurt a fly, and there ain't any war at all anyway.

Yours till death,

BOB.

P. S.—Gott straff everybody.

Then I got this one, postmarked Oyster Bay:

Old Scott:

Deelighted! You're stuff is bully but not as good as mine, of course. Find out if the people in your district would appreciate the services of a good strenuous statesman, for some time out of employment through no fault of my own. Would consider Chautauqua work if it wasn't Billy Miller's home town—no chance for me, of course. Regards to Hinebaugh and Skip Weese. Don't say anything about 1912.

Yours with a bang!

T. R.

Mr. Shrap:

I am glad to hear that you agree with me in that the world must be made safe for democracy. Speaking of democracy, tell Tim Creeden that the next time I am in Ottawa I will be glad to join him in a social glass of Olive and Maroon's line at will.

Ottawa scored in the first five minutes of play. A punt by Ottawa, which was recovered took the ball within seven yards of their enemy's goal. Woodward then ripped thru for a touchdown. After which he booted a pretty goal.

Cohan playing fullback for La Salle was the only man who did not find Ottawa a stone wall. Several times he tipped off so many very pretty runs of about twenty yards each. Once during the first half La Salle pushed it over and footed the goal. Twice more was La Salle's line ripped up and the ball put over. Goal being picked each time netting the Red and White 21 points in all. After the first half the Ottawa boys slackened in their works somewhat. One pretty pass of La Salle's netted them a touchdown, but they failed to kick goal.

Two times again La Salle had the ball within a yard of Ottawa's goal, but lacked the punch to put it over. La Salle's third touchdown came thru one of Woodward's punts being blocked. It rolled back of the line of Ottawa's goal and La Salle captured it, and footed goal. The game ended with Ottawa at La Salle's twenty yard line. The whole team of O. H. S. played well and the coming week's practice should be able to hand it to Pontiac on next Friday without any trouble.

lemonade while we discuss the probable Democratic majority of the next election in County Kerry.

Yours with intelligence.

I can't tell ya who wrote that Shrap, but it was a big man. And it was postmarked Washington. Dearest Shrap:

Isn't that wonderful of John Garland to give a home to the poor decrepid chorus-girls? I am coming straight to Ottawa to thank him personally. I only killed seven men today so I have a little time on my hands.

Shrap, tell me, is he handsome? Something tells me he must be, with that noble soul he must be more beautiful than Bushman.

Oh, Shrap, I am tired of my life of crime. I long to settle down in a quiet little city far from Broadway. I want to have a real home, where I can raise chickens and things, and leave my past far behind me.

You'll help me, won't you, Shrap? Fix it up for me, that's a good kid. You can arrange to have John at the station this evening, can't you?

Yours passionately,

THEDA BARA.

So you see, Shrap, I'm a busy man. Shrap, I see 'be the paper that Engel's are advertising some new gowns for women—Virginia Dare gowns, they call 'em. Now I know why so many of the girls are intoxicated, so to speak, with the new fall styles. If them gowns dare any more than some of the ones I saw at that La Salle high school dance—But they couldn't. Shrap, Ya gotta be there. Billy Sunday could describe 'em but if I tried the folks would throw that new paving at me.

Good nite, Shrap, I gotta answer a telegram I just got from B. I. T. He writes:

"Steal all the stuff you want. Keep to your line, let the chips fall where they may."

And I spose there'll be quite a few of them out in the loc'potts—wearing Virginia Dare dresses!

ADMITS SHE SLEW FATHER; SAYS SHE IS WILLING TO PAY PRICE

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 13.—(Special.)—Alice Karlson, governess in a Dwight, Ill. banker's home, who shot and killed her father Wednesday morning, pleaded guilty to first degree murder in Judge Batson's court yesterday.

"It is unpleasant to think of having killed one's own parents," she said "but after all he was never a father to any of us. I expect no leniency. Over and over I have weighed the proposition in my mind before I finally determined to do what I did and invariably the answer outbalanced by far the greatest cost that could be exacted. My father has paid the price. I am willing to pay mine, no matter what the price may be."

Miss Karlson declared that she would not retain counsel to defend her.

NATION'S FOOD CONTROL WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—Ten million food conservation pledges. Twenty-two million homes visited. A national campaign projected so large in its scope that the work to be accomplished is as great as though a census of the country were to be taken in a week.

Such is the programme outlined for the Food Pledge Week Campaign, October 21 to 29.

What is it all about?

Why so much fuss?

What are the motives back of such a tremendous drive?

In every State thousands of people are asking these questions, while thousands of others are preparing themselves to furnish a complete answer to the query.

The reasons why the Food Pledge Campaign has been projected upon such broad lines are simple enough, plain enough.

So simple and so plain that they have been stated in the compass of a card—a card that it is proposed to hang in every home of the land—a card that is the "war creed of the kitchen," because, so closely are the people of this country linked to the world war that one of the phrases of the struggle must be fought out in the American kitchen.

If soldiers are to fight they must be fed. For the past three years, one

Mrs. Mary A. Dean, Taunton, Mass., in her 87th year, says: "I thought I was beyond the reach of medicine, but Foley Kidney Pills have proven most beneficial in my case."

Mr. Sam A. Hoover, High Point, N. C., writes: "My kidney trouble was worse at night and I had to get up from five to seven times. Now I do not have to get up at night, and consider myself in a truly normal condition, which I attribute to Foley Kidney Pills, as I have taken nothing else."

Mrs. M. A. Bridges, Robinson, Mass., says: "I suffered from kidney ailments for two years. I commenced taking Foley Kidney Pills ten months ago, and though I am 61 years of age, I feel like a 15-year-old girl."

Foley Kidney Pills are tonic, strengthening and up-building, and restore normal action to the kidneys and to a disordered and painful bladder. They act quickly and contain no dangerous or harmful drugs.

by one, our allies across the sea have been taking the men from the farm and from the factory and sending them to the firing line. Each man sent to the firing line meant one less who could be relied upon to help produce the food that "will win the war."

England, France, Italy and Belgium, says the war creed of the kitchen, which, after all, completely states the problem and presents the solution, taken together, even in times of peace, import 40 percent of their foodstuffs, but now, with their millions upon the firing line, they must import more heavily than before.

There are stores of wheat in Australia, there is food in South America, but ships are scarce. Time is a vital factor. The voyage to Australia and to South America takes too long. If the needs of those who fight for us across the sea are to be met the food that sustains those fighters must come from this country.

If the laborer is worthy of his hire surely the fighter is worthy of his food. That is a principle universally accepted by the American public. However, warns the United States Food Administration, it is not every product that can be sent across the sea. Corn will not serve the need; our allies have never used it as a food, they have no mills to grind it; turn it into meal in this country and it would spoil before it could reach a European port. There are just four classes of products, the expert says, that we must send to our allies if our duty to them is to be discharged. They need meat, wheat, sugar and dairy products. But, say the experts, who have gathered the figures, unless American consumption of those foodstuffs is reduced below the normal consumption our reserve will not be large enough to meet the need. And so the problem becomes a simple one, at least when studied. We can conserve our wheat by increasing our consumption of other grains. We can conserve our meat by making a greater demand upon the resources of the fish market. All of these expedients are known to the American housewife.

If the United States were an autocratic country there would be no popular appeal for the conservation of food control. The mailed fist would rule in the kitchen. Imperial food decrees would be enforced at the point of the bayonet. But ours is not an autocratic country. Food control is in the hands of the people themselves, and it is to the people that the Food Administration has appealed in the Food Pledge Card Campaign.

Herbert Hoover has termed this appeal an "unprecedented adventure in democracy," an adventure that will determine whether or not a democratic form of government is after all, fitted to engage in a death grapple with an autocracy.

The appeal in the Food Pledge Week Campaign is that the homes of this country be enrolled as members of the United States Food Administration. Broadly speaking the United States Food Administration includes every man, woman and child in the United States because food control is in the hands of the people.

The Food Pledge Week Campaign, therefore, resolves itself into an effort to secure as a result of voluntary agreement pledges insuring the general support for a well-defined programme of food conservation. The Food Pledge Week Campaign represents an effort to induce as many of the American homes as possible to unite in a common policy. Our wheat reserves can be conserved if every body helps. Our meat reserves can be conserved if the whole public co-operates.

The Food Pledge Week Campaign, therefore, turns out to be simple enough in its outlines. The American people are asked to join together in a common conservation policy. As evidence that they are supporting this policy they are asked to hang a card denoting membership in the United States Food Administration in their window. In order that the conservation policy may be understood, the reasons for it made plain and the manner of observing it rendered certain, instruction cards, "The War Creed of the Kitchen," are to be hung in the home.
